2. When did the first people go to the Moon?

3. What did they see in the sky?

4. What did they wear on the Moon?

5. Are their footprints on the Moon now?

Footprints on the Moon

When you walk on the sand, you leave footprints behind you. Then the wind comes and covers your footprints. But there is no wind on the Moon and no rain. There is no air and no weather. So the footprints of the first people on the Moon are still there today.

Those men are famous now. Their names are Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin. They climbed out of their spaceship and stood on the Moon on 20th July 1969.

They looked around and saw no living things. The ground was dark grey and dusty, and the sky was black. They could see the Earth in the sky. The Earth was blue and white.

Then they started to walk on the Moon. They were in heavy spacesuits but they could walk and jump easily. They could move six metres with each step. It was easy because everything on the Moon is lighter than on the Earth. Things are lighter because there is less gravity. This is because the Moon is smaller than the Earth.

Armstrong and Aldrin sent only three hours on the Moon, but their footprints will probably stay there for hundreds of years.
